Help shape the future of mental health services in Cornwall

Do you have personal experience with mental health, or do you work in the mental health field in Cornwall?

Healthwatch Cornwall is forming a new Mental Health Partnership Board to bring together voices from across Cornwall to shape the future of mental health services.

This is a chance for people with lived mental health experiences to make a real difference by joining together to share insights and experiences directly with key decision-makers from Cornwall Council, the NHS Cornwall and Isles of Scilly Integrated Care Board, Public Health and Mental Health Support services.

These meaningful recommendations can help drive improvements in how mental health care is delivered.

Attend the launch event to share your thoughts on what's working, what needs to change and how we can build a better system together.
